$1,500 IN PRIZES ARE OFFERED TO RESIDENTS IN THIS SECTION

Any Man or Woman is Eligible to Enter this Campaign. There Will be Worthy Prizes For All Who Contest. Here is an Exceptional Opportunity.

ABSOLUTE FAIRNESS AND IMPARTIALITY
GUARANTEED TO EVERYONE WHO ENTERS

Big Five-Passenger Ford Touring Car, Fine $325 Cable Piano, Diamond Rings, Victrolas, Gold Watches and a Ten Per Cent Commission Are the Prizes That Will be Awarded Contestants.

One of the greatest circulation campaigns ever attempted by anyone, anywhere, is to-day announced by The Gettysburg Times and the Adams County News. $1500 in useful and valuable awards are to be distributed absolutely free among the residents of Gettysburg and vicinity. Full description of these prizes and the manner in which they will be awarded will be found on another page of this edition.

A five passenger Ford Touring Car has been chosen as a first grand prize in this great campaign. This car will be awarded absolutely free to some energetic person of Gettysburg or vicinity.

Of the Ford nothing need be said as it is known by everyone and is generally conceded to be the greatest money value of the automobile market. This car was purchased especially for this contest from the local Ford agency. It is of the very latest model and with full equipment so that there will be nothing for the fortunate winner to purchase. It will be on display at the garage all during the campaign where it can be seen by anyone interested.

A $325 Hobart M. Cable piano has been chosen as the second grand prize of this campaign. As of the first prize, this one is also well known to the residents of this section. It is an extremely beautiful instrument of perfect tone and quality and with a richly designed mahogany case. It was purchased especially for this campaign from G. E. Spangler, and will be on display at his show rooms during the campaign.

Then to each of the two districts, regardless of the vote in the other district, will be awarded three prizes. A Victrola has been chosen as the first prize in each district. These wonderful Victrolas are all that could be desired in a mechanical musical instrument. By their aid a person may have the very best of any kind of music and may hear reproductions of the world's greatest artists. These machines were purchased for this contest from G. E. Spangler and will be on display at his showroom.

Two beautiful diamond rings, purchased from C. A. Blocher, are to be used as second district prizes. These stones are of perfect cut and quality and of unusual brilliancy. They are guaranteed by C. A. Blocher, which is a sufficient assurance of their value.

As the third district prize a gold watch has been chosen. These watches will be Elgin movements and they will be incased in a twenty-year gold filled case of rich design and may be had in either ladies' or men's size. They were purchased from C. A. Blocher and will be on display at his store during the campaign.

Cash Commission to Non-Winners. But perhaps the biggest and best feature of the entire campaign is the ten per cent. cash commission feature whereby everyone is assured of at least being well paid for their trouble, no matter whether they win a prize or not.

The liberality of this offer is in full keeping with the scale on which the fine array of prizes has been planned. Every candidate who actively engages in the competition and who remains active to the close of the campaign and who does not win a prize will be paid a cash commission of 10 per cent. of all the money he or she has collected.

The object of this campaign is to secure paid-in-advance subscriptions to The Gettysburg Times and the Adams County News and while doing this to ascertain who are the most energetic and ambitious persons in this section. Resourcefulness, patience, get-there-quickly are qualities developed in people every day by live competition. Competition is the life of success and it also makes achievement worth while. This campaign means that the winners will be the kind of people who appreciate these things. It is a business proposition for all energetic and ambitious people.

Absolute fairness is assured to all who will soon be engaged in this contest. No favoritism will be shown to any one. What the Times and the News wants are new paid-in-advance, bonafide subscriptions and the best way in which these can be secured is through the personal solicitation of the candidates entered in the campaign.

This is not a "something for nothing" scheme. It is not a scheme at all. It is a business proposition and the prizes will be won by those who are willing to use their spare time to advantage in securing subscribers to The Times and News. This will be a campaign of votes, secured by the candidates among the people whom they can see personally or can reach by telephone and by writing letters.

Enter Campaign Now. The first thing for a person to do is to fill in the nomination blank with their own name or that of a friend. This counts for 5,000 votes for the person nominated. After a candidate is once credited with these 5,000 votes, there are just two sources from which they can secure more votes. One is by clipping the ten vote coupons from each issue of the Times and News and the other by securing paid-in-advance subscriptions. The latter source is by far the more important as is shown in the schedule published in another part of this paper.

Full particulars of this campaign will be found on two pages of this issue. Read these over carefully and then send in your name on the nomination blank which you will find on one of these pages. Enter your name to-day. Do not delay. If you do not care to enter the race yourself, send in the name of a friend whom you would like to see share in the distribution of the prizes.

There is one feature of this contest that is sometimes little considered which is of value and that is that in addition to the absolute certainty of securing a prize every contestant gains an experience in meeting people and consulting with them upon a business basis.

This work is always pleasant, honorable and respectable and the business training a young person receives in it cannot be computed in dollars and cents but all the contestants will find it a valuable asset in the affairs of business to which they may be called.

GET TIDINGS OF BIGLERVILLE MAN

Managed to Get out of Russia but it Took him Five Weeks through Dangers and Trials to Reach England. Expected soon.

After five weeks of travel, fraught with peril and adventure, Elijah Albert, the Biglerville man who, it was feared, had been taken a prisoner in Russia reached Liverpool, England and is now on his way home to America. This glad intelligence has been received by Mrs. Albert, in Biglerville.

For a month or more she had heard nothing from her husband but now a batch of letters, the last of them written August 23, has been received and in them he tells of his course of action at the outbreak of the war. At that time he was employed in the Ural Mountains drilling wells. His employer was a Russian Jew and joined the army. Mr. Albert's work was located about 150 miles from Samara, the nearest railroad town, and the trip there had to be made in the crude vehicles afforded in that section of the country.

From Samara he made his way to St. Petersburg and there, it is believed got in touch with the American Ambassador and secured the necessary passports to secure his safe departure from the country of the czar. His trip to London consumed five weeks, according to one of the letters received by Mrs. Albert, and, though he did not go much into detail, he tells that he was frequently subject to dangers and that he had a great deal of difficulty reaching England.

From London he went to Liverpool and there found thousands of other Americans seeking passage so that he lost more time there but his letter written from Liverpool indicated that he had at last been successful and, allowing the necessary time, it is believed he will arrive home within the next week.

Mr. Albert is well acquainted with conditions in Russia. For two years he was engaged in well drilling along the Gulf of Finland. He then returned home and went back to the country again, taking up his work for a firm in the Ural Mountains where he was engaged when the impending war caused a cessation of operations.

The proposed purchasers, it is said, will install new machinery and, in addition to the manufacture of caskets, various kinds of ware stamped out of sheet metal will be made. The plant was purchased several years ago from the Pope Manufacturing Company. It is the largest factory in Hagerstown.

ALLIES STILL GAIN IN FIGHT ON Foe's FLANK

German Right Falls Back 25 Miles.

FIGHTING IS DESPERATE

Von Kluk is Forced to Evacuate Peronne.

CENTER REPULSES ATTACK

The Germans Announce Capture of Varennes.

At the Battle Front, Sept. 25.—The German offensive was extremely vigorous at the western end of the long line stretching along the Rivers Oise and Aisne.

The allied troops, whose gaps had been filled with freshly arrived reinforcements, not only repeatedly thrust back the masses of Germans thrown against them, but eventually carried out a successful counter attack, which resulted in the gaining of considerable ground and the definite capture of Peronne, about which town the fiercest engagement occurred.

The official bulletin issued in Paris says that the battle is becoming quieter in the center, that is in the region from Rheims to Argonne, but is developing on the left; that is on the Aisne and the Oise. An earlier bulletin announced another advance for the allies in this region.

The furious fighting on the western end of the battle line, however, is no longer monopolizing popular interest. The German drive in the Woivre region, on the eastern end of the main battle front, with the object of breaking through the line of forts between Toul and Verdun, has now assumed such proportions that it rivals in importance the enveloping movement of the allies on their left.

The Germans are now employing heavy siege artillery against the eastern forts and, according to a Berlin official statement, "with visible success." The Germans claim to have repulsed a violent French counter attack from Verdun and Toul.

The French government announces that the German attacks are being deflected with special violence and that there are alternate retirements and advances.

Hope to Cut Off Army. A general of General Von Kluk's staff, who was captured in the fighting around Amiens, has been brought to Paris, together with a number of other prisoners.

The German general looked as though he had been in the thick of the fighting. He was hatless and one of the shoulder straps had been wrenched from his coat. His face was covered with grime. His uniform was caked with mud. His boots were wet, muddy and torn. One was ripped, as though it had been struck by a bullet or a fragment of shrapnel. The soldier was worn and emaciated, but he bore himself proudly.

Upon the eastern end of the French war theater the soldiers are getting their first touch of winter. Snow is falling in the Vosges mountains. The French war office is ordering winter clothing shipped to the troops in that district.

The thunder of cannon, the drone of machine guns and the crack of rifle fire are still heard along the great 125-mile battle front without either side being able to claim any decisive advantage. Even along the allies' left, where the French and English have been able to gain ground, their advance has been slow and every foot gained had to be bought with a heavy loss of life.

The Germans under Von Kluk have lost a few positions and their outposts have been pushed back on the west of the Oise, but the main lines of the forces at that point are still intact.

North of General Von Kluk's army the French are making desperate attempts to cut the German line of communications. This is the northernmost supply route of the Germans and their most important, lying in the Valenciennes-Mons-Namur region.

It is declared that General Von Boehm's troops are unable to withstand the assaults of the allies and that the German right wing will be thrown into disaster and the whole invading host be compelled to retreat.

Mines Sink Austrian Craft. Milan, Sept. 25.—The Trieste correspondent of the Corriere Della Sera reports that on Friday two Austrian torpedo boats and one torpedo boat destroyer struck mines off the Dalmatian coast and sank. It is not known whether the crews were saved.

German Ship Shells Madras. Calcutta, by way of London, Sept. 25.—The papers publish an official dispatch, stating that the German cruiser Emden, while passing Madras fired a few shells, but that the damage to the city was slight.

PRINCE GEORGE.
Serbian Heir Wounded as He Led a Terrific Charge.

For the second time since the war began Prince George of Serbia has been wounded. In leading the charge of a battalion of Serbian cavalry he was shot through the body with a rifle bullet. His aids brought him safely from the field. Physicians said the prince's life is in no danger. Prince George was wounded first at Belgrade, in the first Austrian bombardment, early in August. A shell fired from the attacking lines burst near him as he made his rounds of the city's defenses. The first wound was not as serious as the second.

According to the military authorities this is the first direct assault which the allies have been able to deliver against the important German line of communication.

Desperate fighting is going on, especially around Arleux and Couchelette, where the Thirteenth French army corps (40,000 men), under General Alexis, is attempting to smash the invaders' front.

The Germans are continuing their terrific attacks against the allies' center, in the vicinity of Rheims, in an attempt to pierce it, but the French and British who were rushed to that point are holding valiantly.

VILLA STARTS NEW REVOLT

Constitutionalist Chief Renounced by Mexican General

HAS ARMY OF 50,000 MEN

Proclamation Denounces Huerta's Successor as a Traitor to Cause of the People.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 25.—General Francisco Villa has risen in revolt against the so-called Constitutionalist government, headed by Venustiano Carranza.

General Villa, who has 50,000 soldiers at his disposal, made official announcement of his independence and ordered posted proclamations repudiating Carranza throughout the states of Sonora and Chihuahua.

Governor Maytorena, of Sonora, has been hostile to Carranza for weeks and it is believed he was in a large measure responsible for Villa's decision to combat the central government.

The proclamation of revolt is signed by Jose de Sanchez.

"General Villa has refused to recognize the traitor Carranza," the proclamation read, "and has ordered the mobilization of his veteran troops to move on the capital."

After paying tribute to Villa, the proclamation adds that his efforts are supported by Governor Maytorena and Governor Manuel Castilla Brito, of Campeche.

Villa's statement, explaining his stand, asserted that besides Guadalupe and Sonora, that Zacatecas and a part of Coahuila, Carranza's native state, had joined the uprising. The statement follows:

"In view of the attitude of Venustiano Carranza, which has been the cause of great injuries to our country, and since he could never govern a republic nor make happy a country which aspires to real democracy, a country which wants to have a government emanating from the people subject to an interpretation of the national feelings, we have been obliged to renounce him as commander-in-chief of the Constitutionalist army in charge of the executive power; and we have declared hostilities, being disposed to fight until the last, until he is forced to abandon his power and place the same in the hands of the real representatives of the people who are disposed to remedy all evils of the republic and to direct it through the proper road of progress and well-being.

"We are not in favor of personalism, but we are defenders of principles and consequently we will not fight against any other of the chiefs who have contributed to the downfall of the usurper Huerta, our difficulties being against the person of Venustiano Carranza. The states of Sonora, Zacatecas and a part of Coahuila have seconded our attitude and shortly we will be joined by adherents from other localities. General Obregon left for El Paso, Texas.

(Signed) "FRANCISCO VILLA." Word was received from Laredo, Texas, that Villa plans the seizure of ports of entry along the United States border, including Nuevo Laredo.

Carranza is on Defensive. Washington, Sept. 25.—General Carranza has informed the United States government he will not attack General Villa, but will order his forces to be on the defensive and resist at all costs.

The first chief's communication declared the national convention would be held as scheduled on Oct. 1, when a provisional government would be established, which he hoped would be satisfactory to the United States.

It was officially stated at the White House that the latest troubles between General Carranza and General Villa would not alter the plans of the United States as to withdrawing troops from Vera Cruz, or the status of the embargo on arms. No date had been fixed for moving the troops.

FALL 50 FEET DOWN SHAFT

One Man Fatally Hurt; Another Suffers Serious Injuries.

Norristown, Pa., Sept. 25.—The fifty-foot fall of an elevator on a large concrete building just completed by Contractor Thomas Smith, of Norristown, resulted in fatal injuries to Frank Bartero and serious injuries to William G. Shoemaker, a fellow workman.

The elevator, used in the construction of the building, was being dismantled and both men were on it at the time of its fall.

Shoemaker clung to the carriage when it fell. Bartero fell off, caught on the scaffold, where he hung by an arm for a few seconds and then fell to the ground. His skull was fractured.

HEAVY FIGHTING SOUTH OF ANTWERP

German Troops Move to Invest Belgian Port.

(Puer is about eight miles from the forts that protect Antwerp on the southwest.) The German efforts to invest Antwerp have become more strenuous and determined. Their line extends westward nearly into Ghent, and their artillery is hard at work on the south bank of the Scheldt, seven miles distant. Railway service south of Ghent has been stopped.

CHOKED BY ACID FUMES

Scores Overcome, Hundreds Made Ill by Odd Accident in Jersey City.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 25.—Ten gallons of nitric acid, spilled from a carboy to the floor of the Erie railroad station during the commuters rush hour, gave off fumes which soon choked scores of persons to unconsciousness.

The fumes also made hundreds ill stopped traffic on the Hudson tunnels for an hour and packed the station with thousands who verged on panic till a strong force of police quelled them.

None one of the throng sweeping through the station was touched by the acid as it bubbled and boiled over the stone flooring, giving off clouds of fumes. Two or three persons collapsed immediately, but in most of the many cases of unconsciousness the poison acted as a slow agent.

In some cases women were stricken in ferry boats half an hour after they had inhaled the fumes. In perhaps forty cases persons fell over unconscious several minutes after they had ceased to inhale the fumes.

THE OUTCASTS OF POKER FLAT

By BRET HARTE

BRET HARTE

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. Richard Harding Davis and Wallace Irwin named "The Outcasts of Poker Flat," by Bret Harte, whose complete works are published by the Houghton-Mifflin Company.

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

PART II.

W HETHER Mr. Oakhurst had cached his cards with the whisky as something debarred the free access of the community, I cannot say. It was certain that, in Mother Shipton's words, he "didn't say cards once" during that evening. Happily the time was beguiled by an accordion produced somewhat ostentatiously by Tom Simson from his pack. Notwithstanding some difficulties attending the manipulation of this instrument, Piney Woods managed to pluck several reluctant melodies from its keys, to the accompaniment of the innocent on a pair of bone castanets. But the crowning festivity of the evening was reached in a ruck camp meeting hymn, which the lovers, joining hands, sang with great earnestness and vociferation. I fear that a certain defiant tone and Covenanters' swing to its chorus, rather than any devotional quality, caused it speedily to infect the others, who at last joined in the refrain:

I'm proud to live in the service of the Lord,
And I'm bound to die in his army.

The pipes rocked, the storm eddied and whirled above the miserable group and the flames of their altar leaped heavenward, as if in token of the vow.

At midnight the storm abated, the rolling clouds parted and the stars glittered keenly above the sleeping camp. Mr. Oakhurst, whose professional habits had enabled him to live on the smallest possible amount of sleep, in dividing the watch with Tom Simson, somehow managed to take upon himself the greater part of that duty. He excused himself to the innocent by saying that he had "often been a week without sleep." "Doing what?" asked Tom. "Poker," replied Oakhurst, "professionally. When a man gets a streak of luck—bigger luck—he don't get tired. The luck gives in first. Luck," continued the gambler reflectively, "is a mighty queer thing. All you know about it for certain is that it's bound to change. And it's finding out when it's going to change that makes you. We've had a streak of bad luck since we left Poker Flat—you come along and, slap, you get into it too. If you can hold your cards right along you're all right. For," added the gambler, with cheerful irrelevance, "I'm proud to live in the service of the Lord."

And I'm bound to die in his army." The third day came, and the sun, looking through the white curtained valley, saw the outcasts divide their slowly decreasing store of provisions for the morning meal. It was one of the peculiarities of that mountain climate that its rays diffused a kindly warmth over the wintry landscape, as if in regretful commiseration of the past. But it revealed drift on drift of snow piled high around the but—a hopeless, uncharted, trackless sea of white lying below the rocky shores to which the castaways still clung. Through the marvelously clear air the smoke of the pastoral village of Poker Flat rose miles away. Mother Shipton saw it and from a remote pinnacle of her rocky fastness hurled in that direction a fatal malediction. It was her last vengeful attempt, and perhaps for that reason was invested with a certain degree of sublimity. It did her good, she privately informed the Duchess. "Just you go out there and cuss and see." She then set herself to the task of amusing "the child," as she and the Duchess were pleased to call Piney. Piney was no chicken, but it was a soothing and original theory of the pair thus to account for the fact that she didn't swear and wasn't improper.

When night crept up again through the gorges the reedy notes of the accordion rose and fell in fitful spasms and long drawn gasps by the flickering campfire. But music failed to fill entirely the aching void left by insufficient food, and a new diversion was proposed by Piney—story telling. Neither Mr. Oakhurst nor his female companions caring to relate their personal experiences, this plan would have failed, too, but for the innocent. Some months before he had chanced upon a stray copy of Mr. Pope's ingenious translation of the "Iliad." He now proposed to narrate the principal incidents of that poem—having thoroughly mastered the argument and fairly forgotten the words—in the current vernacular of Sandy Bar. And so for the rest of that night the Homeric demigods again walked the earth. Trojan bully and wily Greek wrestled in the winds, and the great pines in the canyon seemed to bow to the wrath of the son of Peleus. Mr. Oakhurst listened with quiet satisfaction. Most especially was he interested in the fate of "Ashheels," as the innocent persisted in denouncing the "swift footed Achilles."

So with small food and much of Homer and the accordion a week passed over the heads of the outcasts. The sun again forsook them, and again from leaden skies the snowflakes were sifted over the land. Day by day closer around them drew the snowy circle until at last they looked from their prison over drifted walls of dazzling white that towered twenty feet above their heads. It became more and more difficult to replenish their fires, even from the fallen trees beside them, now half hidden in the drifts. And yet no one complained. The lovers turned from the dreary prospect and looked into each other's eyes and were happy. Mr. Oakhurst settled himself coolly to the losing game before him. The Duchess, more cheerful than she had been, assumed the care of Piney. Only Mother Shipton—once the strongest of the party—seemed to sicken and fade. At midnight on the tenth day she called Oakhurst to her side. "I'm going," she said in a voice of querulous weakness, "but don't say anything about it. Don't waken the kids. Take the bundle from under my head and open it." Mr. Oakhurst did so. It contained Mother Shipton's rations for the last week, untouched. "Give 'em to the child," she said, pointing to the sleeping Piney. "You've starved yourself," said the gambler. "That's what they call it," said the woman querulously as she lay down again and, turning her face to the wall, passed quietly away.

The accordion and the bones were put aside that day, and Homer was forgotten. When the body of Mother Shipton had been committed to the snow Mr. Oakhurst took the innocent aside and showed him a pair of snow shoes, which he had fashioned from the old pack saddle. "There's one chance in a hundred to save her yet," he said, pointing to Piney, "but it's there," he added, pointing toward Poker Flat. "If you can reach there in two days she's safe." "And you?" asked Tom Simson. "I'll stay here," was the curt reply.

The lovers parted with a long embrace. "You are not going, too?" said the Duchess, as she saw Mr. Oakhurst apparently waiting to accompany him. "As far as the chuyon," he replied. He turned suddenly and kissed the Duchess, leaving her pallid face aflame and her trembling limbs rigid with amazement.

Night came, but not Mr. Oakhurst. It brought the storm again and the whirling snow. Then the Duchess, feeding the fire, found that some one had quietly piled beside the hut enough fuel to last a few days longer. The tears rose to her eyes, but she hid them from Piney.

The women slept but little. In the morning, looking into each other's faces, they read their fate. Neither spoke, but Piney, accepting the position of the stronger, drew near and placed her arm around the Duchess' waist. They kept this attitude for the rest of the day. That night the storm reached its greatest fury, and, rending asunder the protecting pines, invaded the very hut.

Toward morning they found themselves unable to feed the fire, which gradually died away. As the embers slowly blackened the Duchess crept closer to Piney and broke the silence of many hours. "Piney, can you pray?" "No, dear," said Piney simply. The Duchess, without knowing exactly why, felt relieved, and, putting her head upon Piney's shoulder, spoke no more. And so reclining, the younger and purer following the head of her walled sister upon her virgin breast they fell asleep.

The wind lulled as if it feared to waken them. Feathered drifts of snow shaken from the long pine boughs, flew like white winged birds and settled about them as they slept. The moon through the rifted clouds looked down upon what had been the camp. But all human stain, all trace of earthly travail, was hidden beneath the spotless mantle mercifully flung from above.

They slept all that day and the next, nor did they waken when voices and footsteps broke the silence of the camp. And when pitying fingers brushed the snow from their wan faces you could scarcely have told from the equal peace that dwelt upon them which was she that had sinned. Even the law of Poker Flat recognized this and turned away, leaving them still locked in each other's arms.

But at the head of the gulch, on one of the largest pine trees, they found the deuce of clubs pinned to the bark with a bowie knife. It bore the following, written in pencil in a firm hand:

Beneath This Tree
Lies the Body of
JOHN OAKHURST,
Who Struck a Streak of Bad Luck
on the 23d of November, 1850,
and Hanged in His Cheeks
on the 7th December, 1850.

And pulseless and cold, with a Deringer by his side and a bullet in his heart, though still calm as in life, beneath the snow lay he who was at once the strongest and yet the weakest of the outcasts of Poker Flat.

A Scene Not in a Play.

An extraordinary scene took place in the Princess theater, London, on the night of the first production of Charles Reade's great play, "Never Too Late to Mend," Oct. 4, 1865. During the prison scene a large quantity of water was thrown over Miss Moore, who took the part of Joseph, the character done to death by the warders. One of the critics, Mr. Tomlin of the Morning Advertiser, rose from his seat and publicly protested against the unnecessary cruelty. This aroused almost a riot among the audience, and the action of the play was stopped for some considerable time. "Foul" was added to the fire by George Vining, the lessee of the theater, who was playing the part of Tom Robinson and who made a most imprudent speech, in which he practically insulted every critic present, with the result that the theater was left severely alone by the press for many months. The play, however, turned out to be a popular success and had, for those days, the phenomenal run of 140 performances.

Trapped by Its Portrait.

If an old English writer be true in his observations the pheasant must be a very simple bird, for he declares that it puts its head in the ground and thinks that all its body is then hidden. The same author says that it was also captured by another curious plan. A picture of the bird was painted on cloth and then placed in a spot where it was sure of being seen. By and by a silly pheasant coming along catches sight of the portrait and goes up to have a close view of the new neighbor. While engaged in inspecting the canvas the fowler draws near from behind and throws his net over the unwary art student.

REBUKED BY WILSON, TURK ENVOY TO QUIT

A Rustem Bey Tells President He Will Leave Washington.

Washington, Sept. 25.—A Rustem Bey, the Turkish ambassador, has informed President Wilson that he does not alter his views which he recently expressed in a published interview and will leave the United States with in a fortnight.
The announcement of his withdrawal, although not unexpected, caused a profound stir in diplomatic circles in Washington.
The ambassador refused to discuss his action further than to say he had asked his government for leave of absence, which he was certain would be granted, and that he would go to Constantinople.
Coming close on another diplomatic interview, of which the administration at once took cognizance—that of Baron Von Schoen, of the German embassy, who said war between the United States and Japan was "inevitable," it was interpreted as an indication of President Wilson's determination to silence comment by foreign diplomats considered dangerous to the neutrality of this country.
It was understood that the administration would let it be known that the president would decline to receive diplomats who make comments which he considers obnoxious.
Although Count Von Bernstorff and Baron Von Schoen have repudiated the baron's interview, the state department, at the direction of the president, was still looking into it.

Another Trawler Blown Up.
London, Sept. 25.—Another Grimby trawler was blown up by a mine in the North Sea. The vessel remained afloat for ten minutes, which enabled all the members of the crew to escape except one deck hand, who was killed by falling debris.
Instigator of Murder Killed.
Rome, Sept. 25.—Major Tankoske the Serbian officer who is said to have instigated the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife at Sarajevo on June 28, was killed in battle at Kroupagne, on the Drina.

REPORT GERMAN DEFEAT IN RUSSIA

Paris Has Despatch of Great Victory For Czar.

ADVANCE ON CRACOW FORTS

Vanguard of Russian Army Sweeps Toward Galician Fortress and Great Battle Is Near.
London, Sept. 25.—The Paris Matin prints a dispatch from Petrograd stating that the Germans, who drove General Rennenkampf into Russia, are reported to have suffered a great defeat at Subir.
The Russians have reoccupied Soudan, in East Prussia, on the Polish frontier. It is stated that the Germans are evacuating East Prussia to reinforce the line from Thorn, on the border of Poland, to Kalisz, a town in Russian Poland.
A dispatch to Reuters Telegram company from Warsaw, dated Wednesday, says:
"The Germans in the northwest of Poland are quiescent, being weak in cavalry and thus unable to do much reconnoitering. They are strongly fortifying the Czenstochoff-Kalisz line and also portions of the country for their north, at the same time acting entirely on the defensive."
At Votzavsk and Makoff they have hitherto been more active, but now are entrenching at these points. A German advance on the Ostroleka-Augustoff line is impossible owing to the morasses.
"Considerable forces of Germans after crossing the frontier near Miawa, retired three days ago and since then have been strongly reinforced. They are now holding the left bank of the Vistula and fortifying a position between Thorn and Kalisz."
"All possibility of the Austro-German forces near Przemysl effecting a junction with the other armies for their west has now been excluded, as the Russians have reached the river Wistok," says a dispatch from Petrograd to the Morning Post.
A Petrograd dispatch forwarded to London by the Rome correspondent of the Central News agency says that the Russian advance guards already have arrived before the Austrian fortress of Cracow.
Cracow is on the northern border of Galicia, and it has been strongly fortified by Austria. It is believed the combined German and Austrian armies are prepared to offer stubborn resistance at this point.
A victory for Russia will open the way to the German interior.
Austrians Renew Battle.
Petrograd, Sept. 25.—Rallying their forces behind the Wislok river, the Austrians are giving battle to the advancing Russian troops along a curved line extending from the foothills of the Carpathians, east of Jaslo, to Debic, on the Wislok, according to a report received at the war office.
The Austrian troops have been reinforced by large forces of Germans and the combined armies are offering a desperate resistance. However, the Russians are advancing steadily, the general staff states.
The Russians are using Rzeszow as their base and troops are being rushed to that point from Jaroslaw, while the big siege guns are keeping up an unceasing bombardment of Przemysl.

"DOWN WITH THE KAISER"
Syndicalist Placards Demanding Peace Appear in Berlin.
London, Sept. 25.—Despite the extreme watchfulness of the German authorities, says a dispatch from Copenhagen to the London Evening News, syndicalist posters proclaiming "We want peace! Down with the kaiser!" are appearing on the walls of buildings in Berlin.
Travelers driving through the city between railway stations are ordered to keep the blinds of their vehicles drawn so that the posters may not be seen.

Son of Von Moltke Dead.
Paris, Sept. 25.—A son of Field Marshal Von Moltke has been killed in the fighting at Esternay. (Esternay was one of the points further south reached by the Germans in their first rush toward Paris).
War Makes 1200 Jobless.
Reading, Pa., Sept. 25.—Because of an overstock of scrap iron and the European war, the Reading Iron company will close down three of its mills in this city. About 1200 men will be thrown out of employment.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

HOMEMADE APPLE BUTTER.

ONE of the most delicious home products is a well made apple butter. It is comparatively expensive, and in families where there are children it is greatly appreciated.
Must Be Well Cooked.
Cider Apple Butter.—Put cider into a preserving kettle and boil it until reduced to one-third of its original quantity. Peel and slice into it as many apples as it will cover and simmer, stirring until the fruit is tender. Strain the apples out and add more fruit, proceeding in this way until all the cider has been absorbed. Put the mixture into a stone jar and leave overnight. In the morning return to the fire and boil to a soft brown mass. Put into jars and cover.

Old Fashioned Recipe.
Grandma's Apple Butter.—Boil one gallon of fresh sweet cider to one-half its original quantity. Then fill the kettle with sliced sweet apples and let them simmer gently but steadily all day until reduced to about one-half their original bulk. Stir frequently with a wooden spoon or paddle to prevent their scorching. If not boiled down sufficiently the first day, let cook longer on the second. Pack away in stone or wooden jars.

An Economical Way.
Dark Apple Butter.—Take thirteen quarts of apple juice from the press and boil down to four and a half. Have one bushel of sound, perfect apples pared, cored and cut into eighths, if large, or quarters if small. Put the apples into the liquid and cook until they begin to grow tender; then set where they will cook slowly and stir every few minutes. The kettle should never be set directly over the fire. Cook slowly a long time until a dark smooth mass is obtained. It needs no sweetening and will have that peculiar and agreeable tang that no other preserve, jam or marmalade ever has. It is an old fashioned sauce that needs to be revived and will keep in jars without tight sealing all winter if the storeroom is cold. The ingredients given above should make about ten quarts of butter.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy", thus avoiding a lot of muss. While wispy, gray, faded hair is no sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

An Up to Date
Matrimonial Method

By OSCAR COX

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed Kate Goodwin.

"What is it?" asked her friend, Clara Beall.

"If that isn't the most monumental piece of impudence I ever heard of!"

"Tell me what it is."

"You know that red-headed, freckled, loose-jointed Alf Woodbridge?"

"Yes."

"Well, he's sent me a printed circular stating that he's in the market for a wife."

"He says he's up for competition, a prize. Just think of it! He'll marry the girl who passes the best examination in those things that are requisite in a wife."

"Do you mean to say that he has had the assurance to do such a thing?"

"I do."

"He hasn't sent me one of his circulars. If he did I'd send it right back to him."

"H'm! Better wait till you get one of 'em. He says that only a few of the most desirable young ladies of the town will be invited to compete."

"Worse and worse. I wonder that he hasn't died of conceit before this."

"Conceited persons never die of that disease; they seem to thrive on it."

"Of course you won't take any notice of his circular."

"Certainly not, but there's one thing I'd like to know—that is, if any of the girls so deems herself as to fall in with his idea, which one of them will get the—"

"Prize. Just think of that fellow offering himself as a prize!"

"I'll tell you what I have a mind to do."

"What?"

"I've a mind to fill in his questions just to see what comes of it."

"Can't you find that out without pandering to his silly conceit?"

"No; he says that no information will be given any girl who has not been invited to compete and does not enter the race."

"Race—oh heavens! Don't you know that the girl who wins will let it be known even if she submits to the indignity for fun or to punish him?"

"Well, I'm going to pretend to be a candidate, and if I win I shall just tell him what I think of him."

"That's a good idea. I believe I'll do so too."

There were a dozen eligible girls in the town, and six received the circular. The six who were left out were furious. Every one of them pronounced Woodbridge's impudence unbearable. The six who were invited seemed to have various opinions of Woodbridge's act. Some considered it unpardonable, some pronounced it very funny, and one or two girls with advanced views considered it a very practical way of getting a wife. They said they had a mind to select husbands in the same way.

One morning Mr. Woodbridge was surprised at receiving through the mail a note inclosing a list of printed questions filled in in writing. The note said that the sender considered his competitive examination for a wife "perfectly brutal," but that underneath it all was a basis of common sense.

"I'll cowhide those fellows," remarked Mr. Woodbridge, red as a beet. "I didn't suppose when they threatened to perpetrate that joke on me that they would have the hardihood to do it."

The next morning Woodbridge received another set of examination papers and a set in the afternoon. Each girl who responded had an especial excuse for doing so.

"This is getting interesting," remarked Woodbridge to himself. "What excellent reason these girls have for competing! After all, what's wrong in the idea? Marriages are made in all sorts of ways. Why not by competitive examination? In this age of marriages experimental marriages, in which both husband and wife are to be boss, marriages without ceremony and marriage till the contracting parties are tired of each other, why not go a step further and have marriages on examination?"

In the last set of examination papers Mr. Woodbridge received all the questions were scratched and new ones inserted. The new ones were so worded as to constitute a virtual examination of the man. The lady inclosed the paper in a note stating that she considered the plan admirable, but the questions were all wrong. If Mr. Woodbridge considered his examination satisfactory she would be happy to marry him at once. She had a brand new idea of the marriage ceremony. The couple were to be photographed standing beside each other holding hands. She objected to anything being said on the occasion since matrimonial promises, all the world knew, did not mean anything.

Woodbridge burst into a laugh at this form of marriage. He wrote a reply to each one of the young ladies who had sent in papers stating that there had been a reaction toward modesty in him. He would do a bit of courting with the winner, and if she accepted him the result of the examination would be known by the announcement of his engagement with her.

This set the girls agog. One day it was announced that Alfred Woodbridge was engaged to be married to Miss Kate Goodwin.

Woodbridge gave his friends who had perpetrated the joke upon him a supper as an acknowledgment of his gratitude for being instrumental in his securing so much happiness.

Harold MacGrath knows just what the people want in the way of fiction and governs himself accordingly in his latest story, "The Place of Honeymoons." The yarn is clever, as all of MacGrath's stories are. —Chicago News.

A mystery story which keeps the wits working all the time, but it is in no way concerned with crime—or the pursuit of criminals. —Buffalo Express.
